giant step beyond you, you know to Chicago in 1883. He died 47 May. But, even now there are no proposals and the officials who are going to run the show are in a painful state of confusion due to the fact that they have nothing concrete to lay before the assembled delegates. They do not even know yet who is going to preside and the best informed opinion here is that, aside from the oratorical words of welcome, the responses from the visiting delegates and a series of speeches by selected authorities. the only possible outcome of the conference will be the passage of a set of high-sounding but meaningless resolutions, all couched in the most general terms.

IN BRIEF, this is one of those international conferences which just might as well not be held. It will do no harm, but it will not do much good. No one has a real plan here. and no one is bringing a real plan from abroad. Given a chance, it would not take any good newspaperman two days after the conference convened to find this out. Undoubtedly, publication of it would be embarrassing to the Administration, but as it concerns a post-war situation and the civilian populations, it certainly would not affect the war effort to inflict this embars rassment, and it might do good by inculcating the notion that before another international conference is called there ought to be some clear conception of what it could and KNOWLEDGE of this situation is the cause of considerable nervous strain among those into whose lap the conference has been pitched. These gentlemen are laboring hard to evolve an agenda that will appear impressive and devise resolutions that will make the conference seem worth-while. Perhaps, they will succeed. Every effort will be made to keep it from appearing that the delegates arriving here from foreign countries found nothing concrete awaiting them and took nothing concrete away. Perhaps, these officials will be successful in preserving the illusion that

CONSIDERING ALL these things. it is easy to understand why the President and his aides who have to handle the job are eager to keep the press away and to bottle up the facts. It is easy to understand why they would like to do this, but it is not easy to understand why they think they will be able to do it. Soon or late the truth is bound to come out and the futility of trying to cover up incompetency through suppression will be made clear. The whole business is a reflection not so much upon the character of the Administration as upon its intelli-

Look at it FROM THE PERSONAL ANGLE

The best thing you can do with your money is invest it in u. s. bonds

Sure, you are putting ten per-cent of your pay in War Savings Bonds. You are paying Victory tax and income tax and higher prices for food. But ... more people are making more money than at any time in years. War-time wages and war-time hours may not continue after the war. Don't you think it's plain good sense to save for the future? Be thrifty—buy United States Government Bonds for your personal security.

Details of the raid were lacking n the stories from North Africa. and the War Department has never admitted anything beyond the fact that twin-engined Billy Mitchell bombers under the command of Mai Gen Jimmy Doolittle carried

The first admission from sources controlled by the United States and British censors came in the following International News Service dispatch from London:

One year ago today Maj. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle and his intrepid band of airmen ombed Tokyo from an undisclosed base referred to by President Roosevelt as "Shangri-La".

"Tonight the London Daily Telegraph, in a dispatch from a North African air force base, cleared by the official censor, stated that the raiders took off from an aircraft carrier. The name of the carrier is still a secret.

Some of the men who took part in the Tokyo raid, it was said, are now in North Africa.
